any of that lot. The loss of seven millions which has been asked for is less than was expected, and it is entirely to attract the attention of the capitalists away from Austria or Russia. The folly of planting our cabbage in other man's lands ought by this time to have been manifest to the most stupid master of that famous body—the Stock Exchange. Now that the rebellion in Italy is over, there is no such investment for capital, and with such security, elsewhere.

H. E. W.

[FROM OUR CITY CORRESPONDENT.]

London, Saturday, February 19. The most notable event of this week is a "warning" given by the French Government to the "Press," for printing a hostile article made to her by England. In substance this is so, but the detail of the plan she proposes is not, however, of quite so passive a character. What she is willing to do is to withdraw her troops from the Papal States, and to do the same, and urge upon the Papal Government necessary reforms; but she refuses to refer the matter in dispute to the consideration of the other Powers, and to give the matter in which she has a perfect right to act for herself in a purely independent manner. Could we but know the exact terms of proposed action, we should doubtless find that there is some drawback to the cause for which she has taken up arms.

It is said that Austria has expressed her willingness to act in a manner, in reference to the Italian question, so as to preserve peace. This she has been induced to do by the representations made to her by England. In substance this is so, but the detail of the plan she proposes is not, however, of quite so passive a character. What she is willing to do is to withdraw her troops from the Papal States, and to do the same, and urge upon the Papal Government necessary reforms; but she refuses to refer the matter in dispute to the consideration of the other Powers, and to give the matter in which she has a perfect right to act for herself in a purely independent manner. In the meantime, the most active preparations are being made for war by each of the immediately interested States in the present question, and so actively carried on, that really it seems folly to look for anything short of war.

Austria, in time of peace, has 400,000 troops, and in war time can increase the number to 750,000. She has a navy of 135 vessels, 852 guns, 8707 men. Prussia has offered her assistance to reconcile the difference between France and Austria.

Italy is tranquil.

The Paris Conference are to meet this month to decide whether the election of Colonel Couza as hon. member to both the Danubian Principalities is correct or not to the Convention of Paris. The Sultan, or rather the Porte, I should say, contends that it is in violation of its spirit. Colonel Couza, in the meantime, has sent his resignation to the Porte, and the union of the two Principalities. The Porte is anxious that Austrian and Turkish troops should occupy the banks of the Danube as a check upon such an event being carried into execution.

The prospect of a war between France and Austria has caused great sensation in the United States, in expectation of the impact it would give to certain trade interests in the United States. The United States is a war is deemed favourable to the "Annexation of Cuba."

The empire of Hayti is no more. H. M. the Emperor Souverain has abdicated, and a republic has been established without bloodshed.

From Mexico we learn that the English and French admirals on the station have made a formal demand on the Mexican Government for the release of the French and English vessels, and a sum of 1,000,000 dollars to be paid to satisfy the claims of French and English residents. The fleets will take possession of Vera Cruz and Tampico.

A strong effort has been made to get a repeal of the paper duty, but from the answer of Lord Derby to a deputation, it is evident it will not be this session.

The points of difference between the French and English Governments have adopted an identical code of signals for the purpose of verifying the nationality of vessels in the Channel. The French and English Governments have adopted an identical code of signals for the purpose of verifying the nationality of vessels in the Channel.

No measure is intended this season to relieve the shipping interest from the payment of the tonnage duty. Leave has been given the Solicitor-General to bring in a bill to establish a Landed Estate Court and a Metropolitan Registry of Landed Estates. This is a most valuable measure.

Lord Stanley has received leave to bring in a bill to raise £7,000,000 in this country, for the purposes of the India Government, secured on the revenues of India.

Lord John Russell is to bring in a bill to consolidate the laws relating to bankruptcy and insolvency.

The second reading of the Marriage Law Amendment Bill, legalizing marriage with a deceased wife's sister, was carried by 156 to 100.

The India news again comes more favourable. The campaign in Oude ended on the 8th January. Nana Sahib had fled into Nepal.

Money is very abundant, and good bills are discounted at 2 to 2½ per cent.

Trade is dull, but the Board of Trade returns just issued show the following value of the exports and imports of the last year:

1856. 1857. 1858.

Imports—£121,727,493 £135,057,444 £118,211,811

London, Wednesday, February 23.

The reports from the Continent this week have been more warlike than ever. If there is any truth, which there undoubtedly is, in the reports of the Austro-Prussian current-war is either virtually resolved upon, or the chances are so many to one in its favour, that the three Governments implicated in the question are turning themselves with the greatest energy, night and by day, for the coming conflict. The preparations for war are now so palpable as cannot any longer mislead the world. Still do I think that peace will be preserved, and an undoubtedly most imminent, almost on the eve of being declared, yet no peace can be expected of the good offices of England finally succeeding in allaying the storm. But, though this may be, the day of war is merely put off for a time, for it will come it must and will, and it will be a day of blood and fire.

Lord Palmerston, last night, gave notice that on Friday he would call attention of the House to "the State of Europe." The Times, in an admirable leader to-day, says "everything portends the outbreak of a new war." The arsenal throughout the Continent is in a state of the most active preparation. Cannon are cast in incredible numbers; generals are sent forward to reconnoitre and suggest. Commercial industry on the Continent has suffered in the hour of the crisis, and it is upon—nothing is begun in the way of business. The dreadful contingency of war chills every heart and looks upon every pulse.

Although England will stand aloof in the event of war, still she must suffer severely; and there is no knowing how she may ultimately become actually involved. Fortunately Lord Derby declares that we are bound by no treaty to the United Kingdom, and that the State of Europe, it cannot be disguised, is that of intense apprehension of war being inevitable, and the preparations for war being in progress, and Austria show how momentous they feel the crisis to be.

I shall now pass on to matters of specially Australian interest.

On Wednesday last, the 16th February, the Secretary for the Colonies, Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton, entertained a select party of gentlemen from Australia, in which, being the first of its kind, it was very interesting.

It is another step towards the recognition of the Australian colonies being not only part and parcel of our Majesty's dominions, but also as the source of a great and more prominent position than yet occupied.

As another evidence of the recognition of the Australian colonies being a most important adjunct to the British Crown dominions, political commercial, I hope to see the day when the Australian colonies will be represented in Parliament in a much more prominent position than yet occupied.

we have signs of vitality in this undertaking. The arrival of Mr. Merewether in England, as the official representative of the Government and colony of New South Wales, has given life to the subject. A council has been formed, in which have been included the names of Mr. George A. Lloyd, Mr. Larnach, and Mr. Townsend, and the business has been entered upon; but at present the matter is only in its preliminary stage, such as the collection of statistics and other information, upon which a statement will be based to lay before Her Majesty's Government. But this much I am able to communicate to the Colonial Secretary of State will give the matter very best attention, support, and influence. Nay, more, he will personally (under the rose) aid the establishment of the line. The first thing will be to show how vast is the Australian trade, and how important its interest; how large a proportion it contributes to this country's wealth and influence, &c. The subject will have to be based, however, upon a subsidy from this Government for the conveyance of the mails. This is but fair, and now for an important secret connected with this matter: The formation of the new route of postal service, and of the one already existing, will be this—

The Government of New South Wales having granted a subsidy for the Panama route, it will be left to the management of the Government of New South Wales as its own peculiar property—Victoria paying for her part letters and parcels, and the other hand Victoria performs the same operation in the present route, New South Wales will pay to Victoria for the letters she receives by her line of postal communication; so that each colony will stand on its own feet, and each will exercise a personal agency.

This I am able to say, will be the distinctive character of the arrangement.

The Government of New South Wales route to Panama, provision will be made for a mail to British Columbia—a colony which the Colonial Secretary of State has taken under his special charge; in this is the post-holby.

The first vessel of the new line of mails to Australia of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Company takes her departure next month, while the first on the route to New Zealand will be the first of the month.

The Australian Agricultural Company has declared a dividend of £1 per share.

The gentlemen connected with the undertaking of extending the railway to the interior have sailed for their destination, with the useful appliances.

The English and Australian Copper Company have not declared a dividend, but a distribution of 2s. 6d. per share has been made.

The North British Australian Company has declared a dividend of 6s. per cent.

The colonial wool sales commence to-morrow, the 24th instant.

There has been a considerable rise in the value of Victoria Railway 6 per cent. Debentures. The first £1,000,000 was taken last month, and the balance of cash paid the 1st instant. From 107 they have advanced to 111 and 112, being 4s. 4d. and 4s. 6d. per share.

South Australian Government 6 per cent. Bonds are at 110 to 112, while those of New South Wales of 5 per cent. are at 104 to 105.

The Colonial Bank and the Australian Chartered Bank has declared a dividend of 4 per cent. of rate.

The presentation of the New South Wales Testimonial to the shape of a silver service of plate to Sir William Manning, took place on the 4th instant.

Sir Henry Watson Parker presented the plate, in a suitable speech, in which Sir William recognized the greater acceptance of the Testimonial, which would be his most cherished possession to pass to his son, not as an inheritance from himself, but as a gift from the colony, to whom he trusted it would be an example of his duty of giving no inconsiderable share of his time and attention to the welfare of the colony.

The Scottish Australian Investment Company has declared a dividend of 10 per cent., and a resolution passed after some opposition, for increasing the capital by a sum not exceeding £200,000. A vote of £1000 was passed to Mr. Buchanan.

The undertaking called the Australian Land and Emigration Company has been launched, with a capital of £100,000, in shares of £1, with the view of acquiring land in considerable blocks in the colony of Victoria, and disposing of the same in small lots, a plan of systematic emigration is connected with the objects of the company.

The Government Reform Bill will, I am able to say, be the shape of a silver service of plate to Sir William Manning, took place on the 4th instant.

affairs is favourable; whilst Irish advice are satisfactory. The trial in which those thin-skinned gentlemen, Mr. Thackeray and Mr. Edmund Yates are concerned, will not, it is said, come off until June. Mr. Dickens has taken up the cause of the latter, so that the quarrel has assumed the aspect of a faction fight, and, at least, 30,000 men have been marched into Italy; the military position is being everywhere strengthened; the pulse of Germany has been felt; the promise of Prussian support has, it is said, been obtained; and, at least, six millions of francs have been loaned. If these things do not mean war, we are at a loss to know their meaning. Who, then, is to strike the first blow? Assuredly not Austria, who has exhibited no desire to step beyond her own frontier line. The sovereignty of her Italian possessions is the prize of the future victor. It is on France and Sardinia that the responsibility rests, and it is their inscrutable policy and arrangements which must hereafter say, "to be or not to be." Without the aid of France, any conflict between Sardinia and Austria is simply absurd. It would end as disastrously for Victor Emmanuel as it did for Charles Albert on the fatal field of Novara. But with the help of Louis Napoleon all things are possible. Here, then, we have the Emperor of the French once more the disturber of Europe. Ever since he came to the throne, European peace has been a mere name. He has been a brow-beaten Belgium, Sardinia, and Portugal; by turns; he has tried to pick a quarrel with Prussia; he did drag England and Turkey into the Russian war; and he has brought Europe to the verge of another terrible conflict. He has been the cause of the man who is called England's great ally, to whom she has been humbled, even to servility, and who now holds us in check by the magnitude of his armaments. Very shabby, very servile, and very cunning, because the French people are opposed to the war. But we know well enough that the will of the French people goes for nothing, and that their consent will be given to any war which Louis Napoleon may wish to wage. He will discount the national approval of a brief and successful war, or will keep the sword in the scabbard, just as he strikes the Emperor. He is a good peace-maker, it is urged. So it is. Prudent governments, with a revenue scarcely equal to their regular expenditure, will be reluctant to plunge into a war which will add to their debt, and which will be their very embarrassment. Their very embarrassment, however, is not the rule of French finance. Within the past seven years, he has been adding to the national debt, and he has been before us covered with a debt of 1,000 millions. Look at Austria, apparently in danger of losing some of her most fruitful provinces; she can borrow 10 millions, though on ruinous terms; she can bankrupt her exchequer has never yet prevented a war. Depend upon it, Louis Napoleon will go to war, if it suits him, despite of national murmurs or an empty treasury. He will not stop to consider the consequences of a war which will add to his debt, and which will be his very embarrassment. He will discount the national approval of a brief and successful war, or will keep the sword in the scabbard, just as he strikes the Emperor. He is a good peace-maker, it is urged. So it is. Depend upon it, Louis Napoleon will go to war, if it suits him, despite of national murmurs or an empty treasury. He will not stop to consider the consequences of a war which will add to his debt, and which will be his very embarrassment. He will discount the national approval of a brief and successful war, or will keep the sword in the scabbard, just as he strikes the Emperor. He is a good peace-maker, it is urged. So it is. Of choice Agricultural Land, consisting of TWELVE VALUABLE FARMS, containing each about Fifty Acres, on the Eastern shore of the Harbour, in the same, distant about eight miles from PARHAMATTA, and nine miles from PENRITH, being portion of the celebrated LUCAN PARK ESTATE, adjoining CHATSWORTH, the property of Messrs. Two valuable farms, described as above, being portions of the well-known LUCAN PARK ESTATE, on the Western Road.

Portions have been cleared and under cultivation, and the residue is highly timbered forest virgin land.

This sale offers inducements which rarely occur to parties in search of really good farms, every foot being available for cultivation, and they are in a favourite locality, with the best extension of the railway line, now in progress, will be close to a station.

MARRICKVILLE, COOK'S RIVER ROAD.

An allotment of land, a few yards from the Cook's River Road, nearly opposite the residence of Thomas Chalmers, Esq., and divided by Mary-street from the property of Mr. Roberts.

R. P. RICHARDSON has received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Bank-buildings, George-street, on MONDAY, 9th May, at 11 o'clock.

All that parcel of land, being allotment No. 21 of section No. 3, of a subdivision by G. A. Lloyd, known as Mary-street, commencing at the corner of lot 22, bounded on the north-east by the south-west side of Mary-street 50 feet, on the north-west by the south-east boundary of lot 20, 50 feet, on the south-east by the north-west boundary of lot 22, leaving north-easterly 100 feet to the point of commencement.

This is an admirable site in a beautiful locality, just beyond St. Peter's Church, and surrounded only by first-class handsome residences.

Plan and full particulars at the Rooms.

MACARTHUR'S POINT, PYRMONT.

EIGHT BEAUTIFUL WATERBURY SITES, containing about half an acre each, with DEEP WATER FRONTAGE to Elizabeth Bay, close to the residence of Major Christie, and the properties of Messrs. Wellbank, Stabler, Knight, and others.

R. P. RICHARDSON has received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Bank-buildings, George-street, on MONDAY, 9th May, at 11 o'clock.

Eight valuable sites, fronting Elizabeth Bay, MacArthur's Point, Pyrmont.

These waterbodies occupy a first-class position in this now improving and flourishing portion of the city.

The resources Pyrmont possesses within itself, its deep water frontage, its beautiful elevated position, and the proximity of the whole traffic to and from the interior, passing into it, both by the new road and the Railway, when the terminus is extended to the bridge, all tend to result in the estimation of the public.

It appears unaccountable that the Circular Quay, and the most desirable Darling Harbour should monopolise all the wharfage for shipping, while there are thousands of yards of water-frontage along the Pyrmont Peninsula completely landlocked, which could be made available at a comparatively a merely nominal expense, and be more conveniently situated, and much nearer to the city, than most of the present wharves. Such an anomalous preference cannot be permanent, and purchasers of Pyrmont property may feel assured that some time is not distant when water-frontage there will be estimated at a very high value, and realise prices equal to those more recently obtained for the site which by accident were first occupied by the shipping.

The above described allotments are in the market for house sale, and the auctioneer would specially direct to the sale the attention of speculators to parties in search of a desirable waterbodies site, commanding fine views, and which will become of immense value.

The property is leasehold, having about 20 years to run, and arrangements have been made that each purchaser's lease will be assigned to him by Colonel MacArthur.

Plan and further particulars at the Rooms.

R. P. RICHARDSON has received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Bank-buildings, George-street, on MONDAY, 5th May, at 11 o'clock.

All that piece of land, having 30 feet frontage to William-street, Redfern, near its junction with Wells-street, with a depth of 100 feet, extending to a line with two weatherboard cottages erected thereon, containing several verandahs and three and four cottages, with good yard, well of water, &c., at the rear.

These are two neat general cottages, with pretty gardens, both front and back. They adjoin Mr. Chalmers's property, and are divided by a lane from that of Mr. Shepherd's. Those on the lot out for a small investment are invited to inspect them prior to the sale, for they are completed and finished in a style that will bear scrutiny.

Messrs. Mort and Co. sold to-day by auction the French wheat mill, with all fixtures, for £520, to Mr. S. Helton; also four haling-boats, built by Mr. S. Helton, for £40; and a four-roomed brick cottage, in Sydney-place, Pitt-street South, for £100.

By the Oceania we have papers from England to the 10th of March. The English funds are a shade higher than they were on the 17th of January. Consols were quoted at 96 1/4 for 1 for January, and 96 1/4 for the April account. The French Three per cents, however, were a little flatter, and were quoted on the 10th of March at 69 1/2 for money and 68 3/4 for account. The demand for money was moderate, and Bank rate of discount continued at 2 1/2 per cent. At the other discount houses choice bills could be negotiated at from 2 to 2 1/2 per cent. New South Wales Government Debentures appear to be in some favour, and have advanced to 2 1/2 per cent. The London market for Treasury bills, dated in 1886 to 1876, was 102 to 103 1/2; ditto, 1888, 102 to 103. Business done at 102 1/2.

From the Morning Chronicle of March 10th we take the following:—
The market for Public Securities was less active, and the receipt of lower prices from Paris, together with the rumour of the Vienna crisis, had a depressing effect on the market.
